I'm not sure where we go from here, but one thing has to be absolutely clear; our company will not tolerate having any of our employees treated with disrespect, threatened or otherwise mistreated.

Moving forward, we have agreed to present to you three options for you to select from:

1. We realize you have been under a tremendous amount of stress in your personal life, perhaps you would like to take some unpaid time off to be with the people who are close to you. We would hold your job for your return. Part time might work also.
2. You can continue as things are, however, you would have to make a concerted effort to improve your communications and deal with your fellow employees showing them the respect and understanding they deserve. We, along with your core staff are here to help support you in this effort.
3. We can part ways and we will do whatever we can to protect your resume.

Tim, I certainly realize we may have caught you off guard by having this meeting, but we feel the need to address these issues and it is imperative that you comprehend what we are trying to accomplish. We feel strongly that you would be amazed how your people will rally behind you if you put the effort in and give them a chance.

We hope that you know we all favor option two, but this is your choice.

Thank you,
